News digest

Mexico's 'Fire Volcano' Erupts, No Evacuations Yet (Reuters)

Reuters - Mexico's so-called "Fire Volcano" spewed lava, glowing rocks and flames on Friday in an eruption that authorities said was not yet serious enough to evacuate nearby villages.

Juniper Takes Security to Endpoints

Juniper Networks (Quote, Chart) has launched a new initiative designed to improve interoperability of popular third-party antivirus and firewall measures with its own Secure Socket Layer (define) Virtual Private Network (define) appliances.

Yahoo! Hires Chief Data Officer

In a move that has implications for ad targeting and reporting, Yahoo! has hired Usama Fayyad, a co-founder of the company now known as Revenue Science, to the newly-created position of Chief Data Officer.

Tesco To Sell Downloadable Tunes

Tesco aint daft, theyve done the insurance blag and now they getting stuck into the music downloading service. They will be the first supermarket to enter a market that is worth over 25million and is currently dominated by the Apple run iTunes.

Storage Networking World Highlights

News and survey results from Computerworld's twice-annual storage conference.

Start-up OQO to launch hand-size PC

Want a full-fledged Windows XP computer that's about the size of a Pocket PC? Tiny machine debuts after two years of delay.